Pastor's Message / Mensaje del Pastor

Some of the Pharisees who were with him heard this and said to him, "Surely we are not also blind, are we?" Jesus said to them, "If you were blind, you would have no sin; but now you are saying, 'We see,' so your sin remains." (Jn. 9:40-41)

There's a lot to unpack in today's readings, particularly in the Gospel. Today, we focus on the interaction between Jesus and the man born blind at the end of the Gospel, after the man has regained his sight. After a heated discussion with the Pharisees, the man born blind was driven out of the temple. He met Jesus and recognizing the Son of Man, he worshipped him.

Friends, when any member of the body of Christ is hurt by another person, and especially by a member of the Church, Jesus seeks that member of his body. Jesus wants to find every lost or hurting sheep. If anyone has been hurt by a member of the Church or made to feel unwelcome or unloved, Jesus himself is seeking that person.

Why? Because these types of behaviors are not of God. Jesus knows our hearts, and he seeks out every single person, especially those most in need of healing. Coming to him with all our sins and imperfections, we are able to proclaim, "Yes, Lord, I believe." Happy Lent, everyone!

Live as children of light, for light produces every kind of goodness and righteousness and truth. (Eph 5:9)

* * * * *

Algunos de los fariseos que estaban con él oyeron esto y le dijeron: "Ciertamente no somos también ciegos, ¿verdad?" Jesús les dijo: "Si estuvierais ciegos, no tendríais pecado; pero ahora estás diciendo: 'Ya vemos', así que tu pecado permanece." (Juan 9:40-41)

Hay mucho que desempacar en las lecturas de hoy, particularmente en el Evangelio. Hoy, nos centramos en la interacción entre Jesús y el hombre ciego de nacimiento al final del Evangelio, después de que el hombre haya recuperado la vista. Después de una acalorada discusión con los fariseos, el hombre ciego de nacimiento fue expulsado del templo. Conoció a Jesús y reconociendo al Hijo del Hombre, lo adoró.

Amigos, cuando cualquier miembro del cuerpo de Cristo es herido por otra persona, y especialmente por un miembro de la Iglesia, Jesús busca ese miembro de su cuerpo. Jesús quiere encontrar a cada oveja perdida o herida. Si alguien ha sido herido por un miembro de la Iglesia o se ha sentido mal recibido o no amado, Jesús mismo está buscando a esa persona.

¿Por qué? Porque este tipo de comportamientos no son de Dios. Jesús conoce nuestros corazones, y busca a cada persona, especialmente a aquellos que más necesitan sanidad. Viniendo a él con todos nuestros pecados e imperfecciones, podemos proclamar: "Sí, Señor, creo". ¡Feliz Cuaresma a todos!

Vivan como hijos de luz, porque la luz produce toda clase de bondad, rectitud y verdad. (Efesios 5:9)

OUR 2023 ST. FAUSTINA CATECHUMEN CLASS — On February 26, eight Catechumen attended the Rite of Election at the Basilica of Mary, Queen of the Universe in Orlando. These eight students will be baptized, confirmed and make their First Holy Communion at the Easter Vigil.

Four adults, Ben Alvarez, Jeanette Cuevas, Namdar Hosseinzadeh, and Rafael Negrón, and four children, Aaliyah Figueroa, Eliena Morillo, Jaelynn Rosario, and Adriana Torres were in attendance.

Israel Santiago teaches both classes on Sunday. The early class is for the adults and a later one for the children. He accompanied them to the Basilica and brought the Book of the Elect with their names in it.

All eight Catechumens attend Sunday Masses during Lent. Special blessings will be read at these Masses for them and then they are dismissed right before the Consecration. They will also attend Holy Thursday Mass and participate in the washing of the feet.

At the Easter Vigil, we will welcome them as new members of our Catholic faith.

God bless our Catechumen, as well as their families and their teacher.

St. Turibius of Mongrovejo

By Marylu Mariniello

Toribio Alfonso de Mogrovejo was born of noble parents in Mayorga, Spain on November 16, 1538. He was a devout child, with a strong devotion to the Blessed Mother, praying daily and fasting every Saturday in her honor. He also was generous to the poor, caring for them at all levels. At the age of twelve, Turibius was sent to Valladolid to study humanities. Then he attended the University of Salamanca to study law. He was a brilliant student, became a law professor and was noticed by King Phillip II, who later appointed him as the Grand Inquisitor in Granada in 1571. Turibius was only thirty-three years old, holding that post for five years.

On November 16, 1532, a small group of Spanish conquerors arrived in Peru and captured the Inca ruler Atahualpa. They came to the New World as explorers but were mostly interested in riches, which the Incas had. The soldiers wanted ransom for the kidnapping of Atahualpa and received a room full of gold and two rooms of silver, but the Spaniards killed him anyway. Then they continued to conquer others until 1572, when the last of the indigenous rulers was defeated. They were brutal in spite of their Christian heritage, but their presence paved the way for missionaries to come to Peru and begin their work of teaching the Gospel to the native people.

Pope Paul III established the Diocese of Lima in 1541 and appointed the first archbishop of Lima who served for thirty-six years. After he died, the second remained bishop there for two years. Turibius of Mogrovejo became Lima's third archbishop.

Many of the generals acted as tyrants and plunderers, oppressing the indigenous people with cruelty, taking the people's lands, forcing them into slave labor and treating them as if they were not human. In 1537, Pope Paul III issued the papal bull Sublimis Deus, which said that some of the conquerors believed that the indigenous of the West and the South should be "treated as dumb brutes created for our service, pretending that they are incapable of receiving the Catholic Faith." The Pope corrected this by stating "that the Indians are truly men and that they are not only capable of understanding the Catholic Faith...they desire exceedingly to receive it." The King of Spain agreed and issued decrees of reformation, but the soldiers resisted the laws and enforcement was nearly impossible, which continued for decades.

King Phillip II knew he had to send his best bishop to Peru because of the moral chaos, requiring a good man who knew the law, who would bring reforms where needed, preach the Gospel with love and establish communion between the settlers and natives. At that time, the King of Spain was responsible to appoint bishops whom the Pope would either approve or reject. King Phillip chose Turibius for the position. The problem was that Turibius was not a priest; he was a layman.

Turibius objected to the idea but the King insisted and the Pope approved. He told the king that only a priest could be made a bishop and argued that the task was beyond his ability, showing his humility. This proved to be a sign that he was the man for the job and Turibius finally agreed. He prepared for the priesthood in the next two years, was ordained, served as a priest and then was ordained a bishop.

At the age of forty-three, Archbishop Turibius set sail for Peru in September of 1580 with his sister and brother-in-law, arriving several months later. He became the third archbishop of Lima on May 24, 1581, serving for twenty-five years.

The archdiocese stretches about 400 miles along the coast and included three main cities, towns and villages with many more rural homes scattered throughout. The people he now guided included Spanish settlers, soldiers and the indigenous population. Archbishop Turibius wasted no time. He held an archdiocesan synod after a month of his arrival and a year later ran the Third Provincial Council of Lima, on the instruction of King Philip II. This council lasted for more than a year which addressed the many abuses among the clergy and laity, promoted the evangelization of the natives, taught that the Spaniards and indigenous people were equal in dignity and created the first book printed in South America, called Doctrina Christiana, y Catecismo para Instrucción de los Indios, a trilingual catechism written in Spanish, Quechua, and Aymara.

Other trilingual works were also commissioned to help the clergy with confession and preaching in the native dialects. All of the dioceses under the Archbishop executed the acts of that council. Then the Pope confirmed the acts in 1588, implementing them throughout all of South America. Archbishop Turibius founded the first seminary in South America in 1590. He held two more provincial councils in 1591 and 1601 and continued having synods within his own archdiocese.

Besides his administrative efforts, Archbishop Turibius spent seventeen years traveling on foot to every parish and community on three separate occasions, walking through difficult terrain, snow-covered mountains, rain, cold and heat.

He heard confessions and offered Mass every day, learned the native languages and got to know his people.

He made sure that every parish was in order and adhered to Church discipline, built many churches, baptized and confirmed half a million people and made sure that both Spaniards and the natives were equally cared for. He had a passionate zeal for every individual. Three saints would emerge from his diocese, all of whom he confirmed: St. Rose of Lima, St. Martin de Porres, and St. Juan Masias. The Archbishop became good friends with the great Franciscan missionary Francis Solano, who had the gift of many languages, so the indigenous people understood him in their native tongue. Francis Solano would also become a saint.

Archbishop Turibius was the instrument from God for the early Church of Peru and throughout South America. He had the zeal for souls, fidelity to the law, great administrative skills, concern for human dignity and a fatherly heart to bring the faith to all. He predicted the exact date and hour of his death on March 23, 1606, at 3:30 PM, which was Holy Thursday. His final words were "Lord, into Thy hands I commend my spirit". His remains are interred in the archdiocesan cathedral. He was beatified by Pope Innocent XI in 1679 and canonized by Pope Benedict XIII on December 10, 1726. His feast day is March 23 and he is the patron saint of Peru.

This is his prayer: Saint Turibius, you were a true shepherd whose primary concern was the salvation of every soul. You devoted yourself wholeheartedly to that mission. Please pray for me, that I may imitate you and become a better instrument of the Gospel, reaching people in ways that will more fully open their hearts to Christ. Saint Turibius, pray for me. Jesus, I trust in You.
